COLOR OF CIGARS.

The Black Weeds Are Not Always the Strongest Ones.

Probably there is not one smoker in a thousand who would not be surprised and, in fact, incredulous if he were told that the color of a cigar is absolutely no guide to its strength. Yet such is the case and a fact well known to cigar manufacturers and importers. The belief of smokers that cigars of dark color are strong and those of a lighter shade are milder is, in point of fact, as fallacious as it is general. This is but one of many delusions harbored by consumers of tobacco which practical cigar men have smiled at and indulged from time immemorial.

A maker of Havana cigars uses but one grade or blend of tobacco in the body or filler of his cigars. Exactly the same stock is used in his conchas as in his perfectos, in his claros as in his maduros. After the cigars are made, however, his "selector" takes them in hand and classifies them according to relative shades of the wrappers. This is done to effect a uniformity in the appearance of each box of cigars and to enable the dealer to readily indulge the whims of the self deluded smoker.

Inasmuch as the wrapper constitutes not more than one-tenth of the cigar, it will readily be seen that the degree of its strength or mildness is very inconsiderable in effect. In this connection, however, it is interesting to note that tobacco tradersmen versed in the intricacies of the industry rigidly bar the light colored wrapper from their own smoking tables, knowing that it generally indicates that the leaf was prematurely cut and improperly cured and that it impairs the flavor and burn of the cigar. Cubans, who, by the way, are notably partial to mild tobacco, avoid smoking light colored cigars just as they avoid eating a green orange or an unripe banana.

The prejudice of these natives and of tobacco tradersmen is a logical one and serves to throw into bold relief a peculiar misconception of facts which is both amusing and embarrassing to vendors of the fragrant weed.

Whether cigar smokers will ever awaken to the fact that a dark cigar is if anything milder and invariably sweeter and more aromatic than a light cigar remains to be seen.—Tobacco Leaf.

COMPLETED PROVERBS.

"Whatever man has done man can do" better.

"There's many a slip 'twixt' the cradle and the grave.

"Look before you leap" out of the frying pan into the fire.

"Until a man finds a wife he is only half," thereafter he is less.

"Honesty is exact to a penny," but not always to larger amounts.

"A fool and his money are soon parted" when the fool has friends.

"The best things are not bought and sold," they are stolen and kept.

"The second blow makes the fray," but not if the first is well placed.

"Pity is akin to love," but kinship does not always signify friendship.

"Everything comes to the man who waits" except that for which he waits.

"Opportunity knocks once at every man's door," but often makes sure the man is out before knocking.—Literary Digest.

The Slow Story Teller.

Friar Lawrence checks the impetuous Romeo with, "He stumbles who runs fast," a sentiment true enough, perhaps, but one which ought never to be repeated to the constitutionally slow story teller. I like a good story and am ever ready to applaud a good story teller, but heaven save me from the deliberate, detailing, circumlocuting, exasperating efforts of the slow story teller. In the first place, they seldom tell a tale that needs a rapid recital—and when they do they murder it—and in the next place the long stories, the impressively sentimental and the lugubriously funny stories they deal in chiefly are seldom worth listening to.—London Globe.

Forest and Pure Air.

A Parisian scientist, while testifying to the greater purity of the air in the vicinity of forests, does not attribute the cause to a greater richness in oxygen—the quantity of the latter being the same in the atmosphere of woods as in plains—but to the absence of those agents which vitiate the atmosphere of towns. When forests are not surrounded by marshes a well treed region is next to exempt from epidemics. Versailles is a case in point. It is surrounded by a screen of forests. Epidemics are unknown, yet the city has the most wretched water.

Too Polite.

Mrs. Jasper—I shall never send for Dr. Veriswell when I am ill. Mrs. Jumpup—Why not? Mrs. Jasper—Because he is so excessively polite that if he found me at death's door he would hasten to open it for me.

A One Night Stand.

Bosh—Is Blank on the stage? Josh—No. Bosh—Why, yes he is! He told me that he made his first appearance two years ago. Josh—Umhuh! He made his last appearance on the same night.—Detroit Free Press.

We've Wash Fabrics for Every Garment

A City Showing Here at Home....

THIS is the wise that provide for a rainy day. The wise will also be classed with those who will provide for a day of sunshine. "Old Sol" cannot be hid forever and when he does appear you'll want light summery stuffs—and want them in a hurry.

The Shirt Waist Suit is the garment of the season whether it be made of silk, wool or cotton, and no other store will show you a prettier line of serviceable materials than you'll find at our counters. Large figured Organdies and lawns will hold first place in the light dress materials. These too, occupy a large place in our selections.

Don't delay making your summer dresses because of the clouds. They will soon roll away. Come in tomorrow and make a selection from our splendid lines. Here is a partial list:

White Linen Lawns—for shirt waists or suits—full yard wide—the right weight—45c our price.

White Shrink Cotton—36 inches wide—has the appearance of Butcher's linen—for shirt waists suits—15c and 20c.

White Waistings—some new and pretty designs received Saturday—our line 65c.

White Dotted Swiss—this fabric is being used in great quantities for waists and dresses—15c to 50c.

French Lawns, Persian lawns, Mulls etc.—for the commencement or confirmation dress—40c to 75c.

Suiting Violes—the kind that so closely resemble the Mohair—a large line to select from—10c to 25c.

Silk Taffeta—a soft finished cloth with a taffeta finish for waists and suits—splendid colorings—15c.

Cotton Crepe de Chine—a beautiful plain colored cloth for waists and suits—full line of colors—19c.

Zephyr Suitings—27 inch cloth for the shirt waists—very neat mottled effects—at 17½c.

Linen Suitings—good assortment of the best colorings for suits—no other cloth washes better—25c.

Dotted Swiss Muslins—especially adapted for cool summer gowns or dressing sacques—at 15c.

Figured Organdies—a new line just opened—shades are the most popular ones—at 35c.

Large Figured Lawns—these are the correct styles for spring and summer wear—the yard—18c.

Mercerized Pongee—a 36 inch cloth so closely resembling a pongee that you'll call it silk—at 59c.

Ginghams, Chambrays, Percales, lawns and other wanted dress stuffs in large quantities—10c to 25c.

A TACTLESS NURSE.

The Creepy Manner in Which She "Entertained" a Patient.

Nurses are, as a class, a most excellent body of young women, but, as in the case of doctors, one occasionally comes across specimens who are so deficient in tact and sympathy with the sick as to be positively, though unintentionally, brutal. That seems to be the fate of the writer of the following letter:

"Late one night, when I was in considerable pain and unable to sleep, my nurse, in order to provide cheerful diversion, proposed to show me a few of her photographs. So a candle was brought to the bedside and the pictures were held before my eyes as I lay on my back. Producing the first with much gusto, the nurse explained that it was a very pretty picture. It was. It showed 'our mortuary chapel,' and the nurse pointed out the coffins and a row of shrouds hanging up in the corner, explaining that 'we keep all sizes in stock.' The next picture was 'our operating theater,' with the nurse and the doctor 'just ready to begin,' and my tormentor was specially proud of it because the nurse depicted was herself. When she pointed out, however, that galleys were worn by the butcher and his assistant, I endeavored to pass on as quickly as possible to the next picture. It was not long, however, before we came to the portrait of 'Mary, our hospital skeleton.' Nurse explained that Mary was 'cloaked,' but at lectures a string could be pulled and the cloak fell off. In point of fact, the photographer had caught it at the moment of falling, and the figure and features of Mary remained indelibly printed on my memory. I do not say anything against Mary as a skeleton, but she was hardly an apparition to bring comfort or sleep to a poor fevered wretch whose life was hanging in the balance. Yet that nurse held the highest possible credentials in every department of her calling.—London Truth.

ODD SHOE FACTS.

Greek shoes were peculiar in reaching to the middle of the legs.

The present fashion of shoes was introduced into England in 1633.

In the ninth and tenth centuries the greatest princes of Europe wore wooden shoes.

Shoes among the Jews were made of leather, linen, rush or wood; soldiers' shoes were sometimes made of brass or iron.

In the reign of Richard II. shoes were of such absurd length as to require to be supported by being tied to the knees with chains, sometimes of gold or silver.

In the reign of William Rufus of England in the eleventh century a great "dude," Robert the Horned, used shoes with sharp points stuffed with tow and twisted like rams' horns.

The Romans made use of two kinds of shoes—the solen, or scandal, which covered the sole of the foot and was worn at home, and the calceus, which covered the whole foot and was worn abroad.

Victory and After.

Many a man in a moment of fine enthusiasm applauds Patrick Henry's "Give me liberty or give me death." It is a proper sentiment to entertain, but not easy to live up to.

Most of us feel more like the Pennsylvania Dutchman who told his wife to write an appropriate inscription on his knapsack, which she was packing on the eve of his departure to join Washington's army in the Revolution. The enthusiastic woman, dreaming of her hero coming home a general, at least, wrote in good, round letters, "Victory or Death."

In a few moments her husband caught sight of it.

"No goot! No goot!" he exclaimed in great excitement. "Take dat off quick! Put on goot vords, 'Victory, oder come back again!'"—Youth's Companion.

Overdid It.

Mrs. Passay—Mary, wasn't that gentleman asking for me? The New-Maid—No, mum. He described the lady he wanted to see as being about forty, and I told him it couldn't be you. Mrs. Passay—Quite right, my dear. And you shall have an extra afternoon off tomorrow. The New-Maid—Yes, mum—thankee, mum. Yes, mum; I told him it couldn't be you, for you was about fifty. Mrs. Passay—And while you're taking your afternoon off you'd better hunt a new place!—Cleveland Leader.

Her Clever Scheme.

Fanny—Why in the world do you send away for so many catalogues and then never buy anything? Suzette—To keep the postman coming here. I don't want those women across the street to know that Jack and I don't correspond any more.—Detroit Free Press.

Efficient Support.

Tess—I hear Miss Strongmind has asked you to be her bridesmaid. Is that so? Jess—No, indeed. She has asked me to be her "best woman."—Philadelphia Press.

Unappreciated Services.

Chatting across the table in an up-town restaurant, two young men exchanged confidences concerning their activities in a nearby department store. "I can work to the limit of my strength if it is appreciated," said one of them, "but the more one does for the head of my department the more he exalts, and he appreciates nothing." The other young man subscribed to the sentiment and added, "I put the new boy who came a few days ago wise to the situation and advised him not to hustle quite so lively, for if he ever lets up a little it will be concluded that he has lost interest in his job."

An employer who overheard the conversation remarked to a friend who was lunching with him: "That is the secret of shirking service. The man who never has an appreciative word for those in his employ when they manifest an interest in his business stunts available usefulness and discounts the diligence of which he would otherwise get the benefit."—New York Tribune.

Posting Sister's Bean.

He was a naughty little brother, but little brothers always are naughty on such occasions. Sister's young gentleman was waiting patiently in the drawing room, and Tommy opened fire with: "Are you going to propose to my sister tonight?"

"Why, I—er—er—what do you mean?"

Holystone.

The holystone is a soft stone used by sailors for scrubbing decks and is said to have got its name because it was originally used solely for Sunday cleaning. Others assert that the first stones used for this purpose were taken from churchyards, while it is also said to get the name from the fact that a sailor has to go on his knees to use it.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Proper Way.

"So Wiseman is married at last. He used to say if he ever got married he'd manage his wife all right."

"Well, he's pretty shrewd; he's going about it in the right way."

"Is he? How?"

"Letting her have her own way."—Philadelphia Press.

When you visit the new state capitol at St. Paul don't tip the guides, the state pays them a liberal salary.

The man who ten days ago predicted a long unbroken drought now thinks that the wet spell will last indefinitely.

A TELEPHONE war at Red Wing has reduced the rates to a point where ordinary people can enjoy the luxury. The lowest point reached is a 75 cent rate per month for a connection on a four party wire.

The removal by Gov. Van Sant of his magnificent coal black moustache is construed by some to mean that he has made up his mind to retire from politics while others think the significance is that he proposes to get into the game again but in disguise. In either case the fellows that are guessing base their opinion on the ground that his moustache was the leading feature of his political career.

The Stevens Point, Wis., Journals say that Fred Puhler has been adjudged insane and sent to the Wauwautosa insane asylum. Mr. Puhler was at one time owner of THE DISPATCH, coming to Brainerd from Ada, where for some years he conducted the Ada Alert, now the Index. During the Kindred-Nelson fight in the old Fifth congressional district which at that time comprised a large portion of the northern portion of the state, Mr. Puhler had charge of Kindred's interests in Norman, Polk and several other of the northwestern counties which were friendly to Nelson as the vote showed later on, and Puhler carried on such a vigorous and aggressive campaign that after the smoke of battle had cleared and it was found that his candidate had been hopelessly beaten, he concluded that for business interests he would succeed better in a new field, selling his paper and moving to this city. He conducted THE DISPATCH about four months selling it to the present proprietors in July 1883. He was a whole souled, good hearted man, one who would give his last dollar to help a friend in distress and his present deplorable condition will be regretted by many friends in Minnesota.

P. J. McKeon, who returned a few days ago from Rush City, is making arrangements to run the boarding cars on the M. & I. again this summer. Mr. McKeon will make his headquarters in Brainerd.

Dr. J. L. Fredricks has left St Joseph's hospital where he has been since the operation was performed on him for appendicitis. He will be at his office some for the next week or so, but will not do much work for a time.

Chas. Hazen arrived from Duluth yesterday for a brief visit in the city. He left for Mission lake this morning with Dr. Camp. They went up on the steamer which has commenced to ply up and down the river.

Mrs. A. K. Luken was given a pleasant surprise on Friday evening, the event of her birthday anniversary. A large number of friends called and light refreshments were served and games played, the evening being very pleasantly spent.

The little seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Chord while playing with some companions this morning broke her jaw. The little girl was riding in a wheelbarrow which was unintentionally capsize and she fell to the ground with considerable force.

ST. LOUIS FIRM HAS STEPPED IN

And will Fulfill Provisions of Agreement Made With Farmers of Crow Wing

RELATIVE TO SUGAR BEETS

Will Take Minnesota Sugar Company Contracts and Want Farmers to go Ahead

W. H. Cleary, of the Brainerd Grocery company, has received a very important communication from a St. Louis firm, which will be gratifying news to those farmers who had made arrangements to engage to some extent this year in the sugar beet business.

The firm has agreed to take up all the contracts made between the farmers and the Minnesota Sugar company and will fulfill the provisions of the agreements which the Minnesota company was obligated to do. The firm requests Mr. Cleary to make the announcement that the firm is anxious that the farmers proceed with their planting; that the firm will be ready and willing to take the product off their hands at the prices and under the terms specified in the Minnesota Sugar company contracts.

Tomorrow Prof. F. E. Woodard, who is now located at his summer home at Deerwood, will be in the city to start teaching vocal music and will be in Mrs. J. C. Atherton's studio Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday forenoon. Prof. Woodard expects to run up from Deerwood regularly during the summer if enough interest is taken in the work.

John McKay was out from the N. P. hospital today and spent some time at his home. He has been having a very bad time with an injured finger. Blood poisoning set in and for a time it was thought he would lose a hand and perhaps the entire right arm, but careful treatment has brought him out all right and he will soon be able to go to work again.

Alderman Johnson has a paper from Bozeman which contains the account of the city election there which was a rather strenuous one. Among the officers elected Justin Smith's name appears. He was elected city clerk and city attorney. It seems that both offices are combined there. Mr. Smith has also been made secretary of the county agricultural society. Mr. Smith is a graduate of the U. of M. law school and is well known in this city having been born and raised here.

PROJECT FOR SANITORIUM

H. L. McCoy in the City Trying to Interest Doctors in One to Be Established at Pine River.

H. L. McCoy, of Minneapolis, was in the city Saturday night and met some of the doctors of Brainerd and tried to interest them in a project to build a large sanatorium at Pine River, located in Cass county on the M. & I. Mr. McCoy's son is employed on the Pine River Sentinel and he and H. M. Gann have interested the business men of Pine River to the extent that they have taken the matter up and a company is about to be organized.

It is figured that a sanatorium for general purposes in the northern part of Minnesota would be a paying institution from the start.

Loss of Sleep Means Loss of Mind.

Inability to Sleep is Nature's Plain Warning of an Exhausted Nervous System.

DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE PILLS

When you overwork any muscle or set of muscles they tire and must have rest. What is true of muscle is doubly true of the brain, as from it emanates all power to work, to act, to think. The brain is full of little cells that during the waking hours are never quiet in their efforts to furnish to every organ the power to do its duty. Rob these little cells of their rest at night—keep them at work all the time, and soon they tire, refuse to act, fail to generate nerve force and the system goes to ruin. Bromides, sedatives, opiates only hasten the end—they do not build up, they tear down. The true remedy, the only cure, lies in Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills, a medicine that revitalizes, reinvigorates, and by properly nourishing these overworked little cells, give them rest and quiet and enables one to sleep naturally and easily again.

Mrs. Fred Wholeben of Glade Run, Warren, Pa., Says: "I was induced to use Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills for excessive nervousness. I was so nervous I could not bear a noise or much talking. I was very forgetful—my mind seemed dull. I was restless and tired all the time. The result of the use of the box I got was remarkable. They toned up the nerves and system generally and I work well again, am strong—my mind is clear and noise and talk no longer bother me. I am much pleased with the pills and can recommend them highly to anyone who feels as I did." 50 cents a box at dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., N. Y. Portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., on every package.

MAYOR'S VETO IS SUSTAINED

By a Vote of Seven to Three Mayor's Veto of Salary of City Assessor is Sustained

SALARY FIXED AT $500

The Usual Amount of Routine Business is Transacted at the Council Meeting

The most important matter coming up at the council meeting last evening was the matter of the compensation to be allowed the city assessor for making the personal property assessment. At the last meeting the council passed a resolution fixing it at $700.00. This resolution was vetoed and the matter of passing it over the veto was up last night. By a vote of seven to three the council sustained Mayor O'Brien in his action. The vote on passing the resolution stood: Ayes—Halladay, Opsahl and Miller. Nays—Gardner, Peterson, Squires, Armstrong, Baker, Farrar and President Johnson.

The members were all present at the regular meeting of the city council when President Johnson's gavel fell.

The usual grist of bills came up for consideration and everything that had the necessary O. K. went through as though greased.

The first snag struck was a little item for $4.50 in Supt. Peterson's bill for an advertisement of the city electric light department on a so called union label directory issued by one Kinney. The city council rebelled at paying for advertisements not ordered by the council, Alderman Farrar remarking that the city had no competition in the business and did not need to advertise.

The last bill for hall rent for Co. F in the amount of $20.85 to Geo. Gardner was allowed.

The electric light committee asked further time in the matter of the sale of the scrap iron and it was granted.

Further time was also granted the street committee on grading east Front street.

The fire committee was instructed to try a couple of horses owned in the city and thought to be a good match.

The city clerk was authorized to advertise for bids for moving the Southeast Brainerd hose house to lots ordered purchased some time ago.

A petition was presented for a hydrant at the corner of 3rd and Holly streets and was referred to the fire committee to report at next meeting.

A petition for a new street east of 16th street in Southeast Brainerd was referred to the street committee and city engineer to report at next meeting.

Proposals were ordered advertised for the construction of such sidewalks as may be ordered by the city this season.

Then came the most important business of the evening, the question of the veto by Mayor O'Brien of the resolution fixing the salary of the assessor at $700. A motion was made to pass the resolution over the mayor's head but it only received three votes, as stated above. Then a resolution was offered by Alderman Farrar fixing the amount at $500. Alderman Halladay moved an amendment that it be $600 but was ruled out of order and the resolution was put upon its passage, resulting: Ayes, Gardner, Peterson, Squires, Armstrong, Baker, Farrar, 4. Nays, Halladay, Opsahl, Mill, Mr. President.

The question of sprinkling the streets was also up, the party doing the sprinkling had asked that as many business houses had refused to pay the city to make up the deficit. The council ordered the squares at the intersection of the streets paid but declined to pay more.

M. L. SASGEN TO THE FRONT

Has Engaged in the Manufacturing Business at Benton Harbor, Mich., and Prospects are Bright for Him.

The following from the News-Palladium, of Benton Harbor, Mich., will be of interest to many of the friends of M. L. Sasgen, formerly of this city, but who moved with his family to Benton Harbor a short time ago:

"John L. Taylor, head of the Taylor manufacturing company, who has had a long struggle in getting his factory started, is now in the way of success. When he came here a year ago several capitalists had promised to engage in the business with him, but when it came to putting up their share of the money they decided not to engage in the manufacturing business. Within the past few weeks Mr. Taylor has organized a new company which will be known as the Taylor & Sasgen manufacturing company. It has a capital stock of $20,000, and the plan is for the new company to buy out the old Taylor manufacturing company and its $100,000 capitalization. Mr. Taylor's co-partner in the new company is Mr. Sasgen, who just came here from Brainerd, Minn., and is a practical manufacturer. The Taylor company is now employing ten hands."

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

THE HOTTEST COON IN DIXIE

"The Hottest Coon in Dixie" carries in all forty colored performers, including a band and orchestra of fifteen pieces. The Military Parade will be one of the largest and most elaborate attempted by any musical organization that has made this city. Artists of note are included and a full equipment of electric effects, together with a full line of special scenery makes the attraction, one of interest throughout. At the Brainerd opera house on Friday evening, May 5. Seat sale opens Thursday morning.

BEN HENDRICKS IN "OLE OLSON."

"Ole Olson," the bright, lively and laugh compelling Swedish dialect drama will be presented at the Brainerd opera house on Monday May 8 by an excellent organization of players headed by Ben Hendricks.

This popular Swedish comedy drama is familiar to most theatre-goers, and it retains a firm grasp on their favor. It is a genuine, homely comedy, mingled with just that simple touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. Ole, the uncouth Swedish immigrant, in his rough clothes, has his heart in the right place. He is good natured, even under ridicule, but has the qualities that turn ridicule into admiration.

"A LITTLE OUTCAST"

E. J. Carpenter's "A Little Outcast" was the attraction at the Brainerd opera house last night, and the small audience that was present enjoyed the performance throughout. There was not a dull moment during the action of this popular melo-dramatic play, and everyone was well satisfied. The cast is above the average and the scenic investiture is good. Mr. Carpenter has spared no pains in making the show a pretty one and indeed he has succeeded well. Miss Millicent Evans and Miss Dupree were especially good in their roles and the gentlemen members of the cast deserve special mention for their good work. The play was a good one and the house should have been well filled.

STRIKERS GROW UGLY

RIOTING IS MORE OPEN AND ATTACKS UPON NONUNION MEN ARE MORE VICIOUS.

TEAMSTERS CARRY FIREARMS

EMPLOYERS' ASSOCIATION FURNISHES ALL OF THE NEW EMPLOYEES WITH RIFLES.

Chicago, May 2.—Conditions in the teamsters' strike were worse today than at any preceding time. The strikers were in a more ugly mood, the rioting was more open and vicious and the attacks on nonunion men more frequent and daring. The chief cause of the increased belligerency on the part of the strikers and their sympathizers is thought to be that the employers' association has brought 1,500 strike breakers to this city and more are said to be on their way and will arrive here within twelve hours. These men will receive full pay of union men and it has been guaranteed that their places will be permanent. Among them are 200 farmer boys from all the surrounding states, who have volunteered their services and sought positions as drivers.

During the day a new feature appeared in the strike and it will be in full evidence hereafter when a wagon of the employers' association goes through the streets. This feature is a Winchester rifle and it will be carried on all wagons of the association in open view. During the last week there has been much complaint on the part of strike sympathizers of the readiness with which nonunion men, particularly the negroes, have drawn and used revolvers. A number of them have been arrested on the charge of carrying concealed weapons and during the day the managers of the Employers' Teaming company called upon Chief of Police O'Neill and asked if their men had not the right to carry weapons, providing they were held in open view and not concealed. Chief O'Neill said there was no law against it, and arrangements were promptly made by the employers to place Winchester rifles on every one of their wagons. Over 1,000 of these weapons were purchased and during the later part of the afternoon a number of wagons went through the streets with a rifle lying across the knees of the driver and his assistant.

Police Unable to Furnish Protection.
The reason for this move on the part of the employers is that notwithstanding the utmost efforts of the police they are unable to give nonunion teamsters that protection which the employers' association considered adequate.

During the afternoon Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler asked the employers to refrain from making shipments, as he could not furnish men to guard the wagons, because at that time he was compelled to make large details at various depots on account of the incoming of numbers of nonunion men. Assistant Chief Schuettler declared later that he had sufficient men to handle the strike, but the employers demanded ten men for a wagon when three constituted sufficient protection.

The employers, on the other hand, point to the increasing number of assaults made on their drivers and assert that while the police are doing all that they could possibly be expected to perform there are not enough of them to deal properly with the strike, which has spread more in area during the past three days than it has in numbers.

When Mayor Dunne was informed of the fact that rifles would be carried by nonunion men he was visibly disturbed and declared the police will not be permitted to authorize the carrying of arms by anyone, whether in the employ of the Employers' Teaming association or affiliated with the strikers. "The chief of police will give no authority to anyone to carry arms," he said. "I had not heard of the matter before, but the city of Chicago will not authorize the carrying of arms."

Police Cannot Interfere.
Chief of Police O'Neill, however, declared that if the employers armed their men the police cannot legally interfere, as long as the weapons are not concealed.

"There is no law against the carrying of weapons in the open," the chief declared. "There is a law against shooting within the city limits and also a law against brandishing a weapon in a threatening manner, both of these will be strictly enforced by the police. I disapprove of the arming of those engaged in the strike and as far as my influence goes I shall discourage it."

Five men were seriously hurt in fights during the day, but the number actually injured is greatly in excess of this. It is impossible to state it accurately for the reason that many of those hurt disappear in the crowd, or are carried away by their friends as soon as possible after being injured. Those seriously hurt are:

Otto Helmer, shot in leg; John Williams, nonunion teamster, badly beaten; C. F. Ingalls, nonunion teamster, badly beaten; Charles Kullett, nonunion teamster, badly beaten by mob; William Crockett, nonunion teamster, clubbed and stoned until insensible. It is not expected that any of the injured will die.

Police Sergeant Cummings, who was run down on Thursday by an omnibus, driven by John Ceresa, a union driver, died during the day in the hospital. Ceresa is now held to await the action of the grand jury.

The city council at night passed a resolution directing the chief of police to enforce that portion of the state statutes which prohibits the carrying of rifles in the streets by unauthorized persons.

The drivers of the delivery wagons of retail grocery stores declared during the day that they would in no case call for goods at any wholesale establishment where a strike existed. As teamsters are on strike at practically every wholesale grocery house in the city the apparent visible supply of food for the citizens of Chicago is limited to the stocks now held in the retail groceries. The retail drivers also declared that they would refuse to handle meat if any strike occurred in the stock yards. So far there has been no trouble in this direction, although it is predicted.

The food supply of the city has been in no manner abridged. There was a slight upward movement in eggs, vegetables and fruit.

Must Comply With Contracts.

The employers' association has informed the Chicago Teamsters' association, which does the hauling, particularly of coal, for many large business houses, that deliveries must be made or contracts would be cancelled, never to be renewed. The teamsters' association, which has fought shy of aiding either side, promised to make the deliveries are demanded. This will bring out all union teamsters connected with the organization.

The union labor leaders who were indicted last Saturday in connection with the strike appeared at the criminal court building during the day and gave bonds in the sum of $1,500 each. Two serious riots took place at night. The first was at the intersection of Harrison and Des Plaines streets, where a mob containing many women and numbering fully 2,000 attacked a crowd of sixteen nonunion men who were being taken to the depot under the guard of a squad of police. Stones and missiles of all kinds were hurled at the men and it was with great difficulty that the police were able to protect the men from the crowd. Several of the nonunion men were injured with stones and many of the mob suffered broken heads from the clubs of the police. A number of arrests were made.

The second fight took place at Twenty-second and State streets, when a crowd attacked four coal wagons which under the guard of eight private detectives were returning to the yards of the Daniels company after making the delivery of coal at a nearby plant. The nonunion men were pelted with stones, thrown from the second story of a building which they were passing and the detectives, drawing their revolvers, charged into the place. The inmates fled and no shots were fired. A riot call brought the police to the scene, and the crowd was dispersed. The detectives were arrested for carrying concealed weapons.

La Follette Vetoes Parole Bill.

Madison, Wis., May 2.—The first veto of the present session came in at night. Governor La Follette sent a message to the senate vetoing the bill permitting the state board of control to parole prisoners under rules provided by that body. The governor maintained in his message that it practically would clothe the board with power conditionally to pardon, and, in effect, to shorten sentences imposed upon convicts by courts.

WITH BREACH OF FAITH.

Alexander and Tarbell Charged by James Hazen Hyde.

New York, May 2.—President Alexander and Second Vice President Tarbell of the Equitable Life Assurance society are charged by James H. Hyde in an affidavit filed during the day with Supreme Court Justice Maddox in Brooklyn with stirring the society to demand a broader scheme of mutualization after they had agreed to a compromise plan.

PROMINENT MAN KILLED.

Accidentally Shot Dead by a Clerk in His Employ.

Albany, N. Y., May 2.—Franklin Havens, secretary of the Albany board of fire insurance underwriters, was shot dead in his office during the day by Miss Julia Craver, clerk in his employ. Miss Craver, who is under arrest, asserts that the shooting was accidental and the police say they have found no evidence to cast doubt upon her story. Miss Craver, who is almost prostrated over the affair, is confined in the house of detention of the humane society. She says that she pointed the revolver, which was the property of Havens, at him in a spirit of fun as he was entering the room in which she stood, commanding him to throw up his hands. He had told her, she asserts, that the weapon was not loaded, and she declares that she pulled the trigger three times before the weapon exploded. An examination of the pistol confirms this statement. It contained six cartridges and two of them in addition to the one discharged had indentations from the hammer.

Mr. Havens was thirty-five years old, married and the father of two children.

NO GAME SIGHTED.

Presidential Hunting Party Puts in a Fruitless Day.

Glenwood Springs, Colo., May 2.—President Roosevelt and members of his hunting party were in the saddle from 8 a. m. until 4:30 p. m., returning without a pelt of any kind or even sighting game. Secretary Loeb reached the camp at 2 p. m. and expected to return during the day.

The hunters will occupy their old camp on East Divide Creek Tuesday.

Arrested for Smoking Cigarettes.

Frankfort, Ind., May 2.—Walter Weaver and Miss Pearl Hankins were arrested at night charged with smoking and having cigarettes in their possession. They were lodged in jail and will be given a hearing during the day.

OWNERSHIP OF THE HAMMER.

Doubtful If Prosecution Can Fasten It Upon Dr. Koch.

Mankato, Minn., May 2.—In view of the evidence presented in the Koch trial during the day it is doubtful if the state will be able to prove conclusively that the hammer found near the murdered body of Dr. L. A. Gebhard was one owned by the young dentist who is charged with the crime.

Heretofore the evidence, with the exception of that of Mrs. Kars, has tended to prove that the hammer was owned by the Koch family, but Dr. G. F. Renieke, whose office adjoined Dr. Gebhard's, admitted on the stand during the day that he identified the hammer at the coroner's inquest as one belonging to Dr. Gebhard. Dr. Renieke also stated while on the stand that Asa P. Brooks, the newspaper man whose office is below the former dental rooms of Dr. Gebhard, and who is the only witness who obtained full view of the murderer, said on the night of the murder that the blood-stained hammer with which the murderer had felled his victim was one belonging to Dr. Gebhard. It is understood that Asa P. Brooks will repeat this statement when he is called to take the witness stand, and it seems doubtful that the prosecution will be able to lay any stress upon the identity of the hammer.

Saved by Dynamite.

Sometimes a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that the fire can't cross. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long, you feel as if nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray, of Calhoun, Ga., writes: "My wife had a very aggravated cough, which kept her awake nights. Two physicians could not help her; so she took Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, which eased her cough, gave her sleep, and finally cured her." Strictly scientific cure for bronchitis and La Grippe. At H. P. Dunn & Co.'s drug store, price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

The Misery of Piles

Thousands know it and thousands daily submit, through their ignorance, to the torture of the knife.

They are ignorant of the fact that there is an internal remedy that will positively and painlessly cure.

Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific The Internal Remedy

strikes at the prime causes of piles—indigestion, congestion of the liver and constipation. These causes are removed and removed for good. Get a bottle today and see how well it proves the truth of this statement.

For dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness, catarrh of the stomach and kindred ailments it is the greatest remedy that has ever yet benefited mankind.

When these troubles are taken care of and cured, Piles will be a thing of the past.

ENUMERATORS ARE APPOINTED

The following Have Been Appointed by Secretary of State Hanson to Take the

CENSUS OF CROW WING COUNTY

Work Will Be Thorough and Every Effort Made to Get an Accurate Count.

The following named gentlemen have been appointed by the secretary of state, upon recommendation of Senator Frater and Representatives Rider and Bouck and the chairman of the county committee, to take the census of Crow Wing county, work on which will be commenced as soon as the enumerators receive the necessary blanks and instructions. It has been the endeavor to select enumerators who will give the matter their careful attention so that the count, when finished, will be accurate and complete. The compensation for this work is as follows: In civil divisions containing not less than 500 nor more than 5,000, enumerators will receive $2.25 for each 100 names; in cities having a population of $5,000 or more, $2.00 for each 100 names; in all other districts an allowance not exceeding $2.50 for each 100 names, and in sparsely populated districts the bureau is authorized to pay from $2 to $3 per day of ten hours actual field work. No claim for mileage or traveling expenses can be allowed under the law to any enumerator. The amount of money appropriated by the state legislature to cover the entire expense for taking the census of the state was $65,000.

CALLED AS PASTOR

Rev. Richard Brown Writes Entertainingly of His Experience at Congdon, Oregon

The following was received in a letter from Rev. Richard Brown, who has been sojourning at Congdon, Oregon for some time:

"On Sunday last after the morning service in the First Congregational church, after a very effective sermon delivered by Rev. Richard Brown, Brainerd, Minn., on the subject: 'Hindrances which prove a help to our Spiritual Life,' Rev. Edward Curran, editor of the Congdon Times, stepped up to the pulpit and asked the pastor and the congregation to be seated. He said that he had been instructed by nearly all the business men of the city, and a large number of friends belonging to the A. F. & A. M., and K. P., and I. O. O. F. societies, to ask Rev. Mr. Brown to assume the pastorate of the church at a salary of $1,000 a year, and use of parsonage and a large garden set to fruit trees. The success of Mr. Brown's special meetings, and unique street meetings, had greatly endeared him to all classes, and that the church had been on the look out for such a man for several years. He hoped on behalf of the people who were interested in the church, and more, on behalf of a large number of business men who were just beginning to attend church and especially to appreciate highly the services of so able a man, that Mr. Brown would consent to accept the pastorate and become their pastor. A sum of money was to be appropriated for moving expenses, and the salary was to be paid promptly and in full every month. Rev. Mr. Brown in replying said, that he could give them no decided answer until he had conferred with friends in Brainerd and Minneapolis with whom he had some business prospects in view. He also stated that he been called to be assistant superintendent of the Sunday School work in Southeastern Oregon with residence at Baker City, and before he could give any definite decision it would be necessary to confer with the higher authorities in Portland.

"Mr. Brown has left a splendid impression on this entire community. He leaves for La Grande on business on Monday, May 1st, and will then return to his home in Minnesota. It is the wish of a large circle of friends that Mr. Brown will decide to become pastor in Congdon, Oregon."

ST. BRAIN TEAM MAKES GOOD START

Shut Out Strong Carleton College Team, 11 to 0 and Beat Faribault Two Games

SCHEDULE OF NORTHERN IS OUT

First Game will be May 20 Here Instead of May 18 as was Previously Announced

Friday—St. Brain 11; Carleton College 0.

Saturday—St. Brain 11; Faribault 2.

Sunday—St. Brain 5; Faribault 0.

That sounds like there was something doing in the St. Brain camp of the Northern League, and sounds just like getting news from home to the Brainerd fans.

In a letter to Manager Reilly today, Playing Manager White states that in the game yesterday with Faribault McCleary was on the slab for Faribault and he was hit all over the diamond. Howell was in the box for St. Brain and he held the opposing team down to four hits.

The Northern League schedule is out and will be published later. The schedule will require a change in the opening date here. It was originally planned to open here on May 18, but the date of the opening game here will be May 20 instead. The team will play Duluth at St. Cloud on May 18 and 19 and will come to Brainerd to play the two following days.

CHANGES IN NOS. 5 AND 6

Trains, it is Reported, Will Be Run Between Fargo and Jamestown in a Short Time.

The towns between Fargo and Jamestown are to have the same train service over the Northern Pacific as is operated on the lines east of Fargo. The local passenger trains, known as Nos. 5 and 6, which run from St. Paul to Fargo, will be extended to Jamestown. With the present service it will give Fargo two morning and two evening trains each way. The extension of the local trains will relieve the coast trains from doing local work and enable them to make better time. There will be still more through trains added after June 1.—Minneapolis Journal.

Brainerd Has to Bow to the Inevitable

—Scores of Citizens Prove it.

After the reader has read the public statement of this representative citizen of Brainerd given below, he must fairly, squarely and honestly come to this conclusion: "A remedy which cured years ago, which had kept the party in good health since, can be relief upon to perform the same work under similar circumstances. Read this:

Chris. Hanson, of 1412 E. Oak St., Brainerd, Minn., says: "The lapse of time has not diminished my confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills which I recommended in a testimonial given in 1898. As I stated at that time, we found this remedy to be a sure cure for children afflicted with weakness of the kidneys. Our boy had been troubled in this way at night, but Doan's Kidney Pills which we got at H. P. Dunn & Co.'s drug store, gave him prompt and effective relief. Since then I have used Doan's Kidney Pills myself for backache and they banished my trouble in a short time."

Lasting Style Immediate Comfort

The trouble with most shoes is that they begin to feel comfortable about the time they are worn out and shabby looking.

In total disregard of the true curves of the human foot, every shoe, except the Ralston, is made with an almost flat, rigid sole. It is not until months of wear that the leather begins to take on the curves that mark the bottom of your foot.

These curves exist in a Ralston Health Shoe when you buy it

That's the reason you can put on a pair of Ralston Shoes and walk off immediately with the old shoe comfort inside and the stylish new shoe appearance outside.

You escape the weeks of torture "breaking in" shoes. You get material and workmanship that challenges the best efforts of high-priced makers anywhere. You get styles—graceful, thoroughly up-to-date, and approved by men who make dressing a fine art.

THE LITTLE GREEN HAT

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Copyright, 1904, by Temple Bailey

It was such a beauty of a hat—all soft shaded velvets and shining breasts, with a few creamy roses close under the brim.

"You never trimmed anything quite so lovely as that, Miss Nannie," said Josephine.

Miss Nannie blushed all over her delicate old face.

"My dear," she protested, then she straightened up with a little gesture of pride, "I do think it is a success myself. I thought of you when I was trimming it. Your hair has just enough gold in it to go with the green beautifully."

But Josephine interrupted her. "Oh, dear Miss Nannie, I can't possibly afford that hat. You mustn't think of it. Put it in the window and sell it to some one who can have more than one hat in two years." And Josephine glanced ruefully in a mirror which showed her shabby black turban, with a much worse for wear feather.

"I will let you have it at cost, my dear," began Miss Nannie, but Josephine stopped her.

"No, I must get used to being poor, you dear, and my friends must not spoil me. But, oh, Miss Nannie, Miss Nannie," cried poor Josephine, "why couldn't we have lost our money when I was old and ugly and didn't want pretty things?"

The little milliner patted the girl's hand. "It is too bad," she said, "and I wish you'd let me help you."

"As if I would!" indignantly—"when you have to do things all your life that you don't want to do. And now, as I can't have a new hat, you must help me plan something from these old things." And she untied a package and showed a conglomerate mass of silks and laces and ribbons.

But while Miss Nannie twisted and turned the inadequate materials Josephine could not resist one more trying on of the little green hat. She set it on her soft, bright hair and gave a glance in the mirror; then she whirled around, with a startled cry.

"Why, Jack Van Horn," she exclaimed, "where did you come from? Miss Nannie, you know Mr. Van Horn, don't you? I'm trying on hats," she continued.

"DO YOUR EYES PAIN YOU?" SHE QUESTIONED FEARFULLY.

ued, a little fluttered by the look he bent upon her.

"By Jove," he said, "that's a stunning hat, Miss Mason! I never saw you look so well. It's most becoming."

"But I can't have it," she said, with a sigh.

His eyes showed his surprise.

"I'll come in again and plan, Miss Nannie," she said hurriedly, and then, with a quick "Goodbye" she was out and off.

"And now how can I serve you, sir?" asked Miss Nannie to her masculine customer, who stood looking after the bright vision.

"Oh—ah—yes—I came in to get some feathers. I'm making flies for my fishing," he explained, but she could see that his thoughts were rambling. "I—the green on that hat is what I want."

"I haven't another feather like that in the house," said Miss Nannie, "and it would be a pity to spoil the hat."

"Well, I'll buy the hat then," he said. "Buy a whole hat to make a fly to catch a trout?" Miss Nannie's tone was suspicious.

The young man blushed, then he broke out awkwardly:

"Do you think I could send it to her?"

Miss Nannie stiffened.

"Miss Mason could not possibly accept it," she said.

"Oh, I know"—Mr. Van Horn was getting redder and redder—"not if she knew it came from me, but she ought to have it. It suits her beauty."

"Yes, it does," said Miss Nannie. "What a pity that her father should have failed at this time in her life!"

"And she so infernally proud," complained the young man. "Why, I've asked her to marry me a half dozen times, and she won't. She!"

Miss Nannie gave a quick cry of pleasure. "Oh, then you are the 'Jack' she talks of so often."

The young man seized her hands eagerly. "Did she call me that?" he cried rapturously. "I didn't suppose that even in her dreams she called me

Jack," and his voice lingered on the word.

"Perhaps I shouldn't have told you," hesitated Miss Nannie.

"Oh, yes, you should. You have carried me straight into heaven. If she can think of me as 'Jack' she shall call me that or my name is not Jack Van Horn." Then he held out both hands to the little milliner. "Help me, Miss Nannie," he said.

"There is only one way that you will get Josephine Mason to marry you," said Miss Nannie, with decision.

"And that?"

"Work on her sympathies. She is proud, and she won't take if she can't give."

"If she would only give herself," groaned the young man.

"You can't lose your money," said Miss Nannie, "nor break your bones, nor go blind!"—Then suddenly she gave a little cry.

"She's coming back," she said.

"Is she?" cried Van Horn; then, as Josephine entered, he sank into a chair.

"I left my"—began Josephine, and stopped as she caught sight of Van Horn's drooping figure.

"What's the matter with him, Miss Nannie? What's the matter, Mr. Van Horn?"

"Everything looks black," moaned the hypocrite, who had his eyes closed and was telling the truth.

Miss Nannie gave a quick gasp, then entered into the conspiracy with a zest.

"Pull down the shades, Josephine," she commanded. "It must be his eyes, poor fellow."

"I wonder if I am going blind," murmured Van Horn.

Josephine knelt by his side. "Do your eyes pain you?" she questioned fearfully.

He put out his hands gropingly until they touched her hair; then they rested there.

"I am a bit more comfortable now," he said.

"Open your eyes and see if you can bear the light."

Van Horn blinked and then shut them again.

"That this should come to me—in the strength of my youth!" he murmured. Then Josephine gave way.

"Oh, Jack, Jack!" she wailed. "Let me take care of you."

Every fiber in Van Horn thrilled, but he was heroic.

"I could not accept such a sacrifice," he said.

"But"—and there was a softness in Josephine's voice that made Miss Nannie scurry away, with a murmur of "something to put on his eyes"—"but"—and Josephine's voice was a whisper—"It wouldn't be a sacrifice, Jack!"

How Van Horn was led home and how he stayed for a week in a darkened room was the outward manifestation of his deception. Only Miss Nannie knew the inward meaning of it all, and Miss Nannie never told. But when the wedding came a month or two later she brought out the bandbox in which the little green hat had remained ever since that fateful day, and Josephine wore it on her wedding journey. Then, and not until then, did she know of the ruse by which she had been won, and out of the fullness of her happiness she forgave her husband.

Lives Spent on the Water.

In Japan thousands are born and die on boats without ever living on shore. One of the most interesting features of Japanese life is the manner of living in boats and junks, thousands of which frequent every bay along the coast. The awkward junks always belong to the members of one family, and usually every member of the family, old and young, lives on board. The smaller sailboats are very narrow, and the sail (they never have but one) is placed very near the stern and extends from the mast about the same distance in either direction.

In these boats men and women are born and die without ever having an abiding place on shore. They wear but few clothes except when it rains, when they put on layers of fringed straw mats, which give them the appearance of being thatched. At night, if in harbor, they bend poles over the boat from side to side in the shape of a bow, cover them with this straw and go to sleep altogether like a lot of pigs.—London Tit-Bits.

Oriental Colors.

An oriental living in New York freed his mind about our taste in colors with a candor which was refreshing if not agreeable. "The favorite colors here are pink, sky blue and corn yellow," he said. "All three are hideous. They have no character, no history. In the east we love strong colors, especially after they have faded into soft, reminiscent tones. Our pinks and light blues and yellows are exquisite, having originally been strong, rich hues. Look at this magenta scarf embroidered in gold which was bought in Damascus. Is it not delightful? Yet compare it with the magenta silk handkerchief the Italian woman wears on Sunday. There is that much difference between your pinks and blues and ours. The trouble with you people here is that you can't stand strong colors. We love them. You try to manufacture the tones we wait for time and the warm sun to make for us."—New York Post.

A Natural Inquiry.

This Lincoln story was originally told by Frederick Douglass in his lecture on John Brown. Just after his first inauguration President Lincoln was one day blacking his boots in democratic fashion when several foreign diplomats called and caught him in the act. One of them remarked sneeringly, "Mr. President, in our countries the chief executives do not black their own boots." "Indeed," said Mr. Lincoln, with evident curiosity. "Whose boots do they black?"

AT FRIENDSHIP'S CALL

By ETHEL BARRINGTON

Copyright, 1904, by Ethel Barrington

Dusk was clouding the landscape as Noah Sterling, powerfully built, with blue eyes in contrast to his gray hairs, stepped on the porch. He leaned against the framework of the door and smoked his pipe, apparently oblivious to the voices floating out from the kitchen. Yet he heard, for his brows lowered and met above his eyes, and his teeth shut sharply on the brier's stem.

"I'll enter no family unwelcome. Your father has his pride, I mine!"—The girl's voice was pitched high and broke suddenly. Then followed indistinct pleadings from her companion, whom she answered: "It's true, all true. But I'm in the mill, a mill hand, while you—some day you will be boss; you'll own all; you!"

"Don't say it, Bess. I am the unhappy creature in the world, the son of a self-made man. Father forgets he was once a laborer, choosing his wife for himself. I'll do the same. Let him do what he will with the property. I've brains and hands. His blood fills my veins, and I'll win out, as he did."

"You are all he has in the world. I'll not come between you!"

Noah Sterling glanced into the dim room. He could see Bess fighting against her love and the stalwart son of the mill owner as he held her hands. Noiselessly he stepped from the porch to the coolness of the little garden. It was quite dark when he returned, but no light greeted him from the open door, but a low sob broke the stillness and guided him to the girl's side. She sat by the table, her head buried in her arms, her slight frame trembling with emotion. Noah watched her silently.

"Oh, Daddy Noah, my heart is broken!"—The words were scarcely audible. Sterling sat down heavily, resting his work worn hand on her arm.

"You sent him away bravely. Now you cry for him."

Bess cleared her voice. There was a little laugh of self pity in her tone as she spoke.

"That's the woman of it. Yet it's you who spoiled me. When did I ask for aught—and you not give it to me? Oh, dad, if you could only help me now!"

"You've set your heart on this. You truly love young Thadd?"

"He's all the world!"—Sterling withdrew his hand abruptly. Impetuously Bess flung her arms about his neck. "Not that I love you less, dear, or ever could, but you loved my mother—you understand—you must—you are all that is left to me now."

"Understand! Sure I understand."

Soothing her, he drew her to his knee and held her in his arms, as he had so often done as a child. Comforted, she prepared to retire.

"Are you not going to bed?" she questioned, her candle illuminating her heavy eyes.

"Presently, child."

Yet he had scarcely stirred when the gray dawn showed in the east; then he rose stiffly, determination in his face. "I've just got to do it. I swore I never would, but I will."

At noon next day Noah Sterling entered the office. Thaddus Giles, the boss, was writing when the foreman appeared, but he nodded kindly.

"Sit down, Noah. I'll be through in a minute." Sterling took the indicated chair near the desk, absently twirling his cap in his hand.

"Glad to see you, old man. Anything special that you dropped in for?" asked Giles, pushing his papers from him and swinging around in his chair.

"I wanted particular to see you," began Sterling uncertainly. "It's about the young folks—your boy Thadd and Bess Hardy."

"Stop, Noah," broke in the mill owner sharply. "Some things I allow no interference in. It's none of your business anyhow."

"Hold hard. I'm one of your hands—have been for years—yet we were kids together, you, Tim, and me. Was there ever a scrape that we didn't share?"

"We were sure enough pals." The boss' eyes twinkled at sundry remembrances.

"When Tim died—you don't recollect—you were planning your own big deal. But I knew. There was a baby, Thadd.

I ain't never told you. But the night Tim went I sat with him. He worried awful about that baby. Seemed as if he just couldn't die till I set his mind at rest. I swore the child should be first with me, at any sacrifice I'd make her happy, and I will—I will." Sterling leaned forward. Giles returned his look questioningly.

"I don't understand what you are after," he said at last.

"Bess is Tim's daughter—Tim and Bessie's baby."

"Bessie Fields that was?"

"The same. You begin to see now."

"Come, Noah, this is ridiculous! Because Tim was our playmate it does not follow I should allow my son to throw himself away upon his daughter, a mill hand. However, for the sake of old times and what I owe to you besides I'll make my position clear." As Giles paused he showed in every line the inflexibility that had gained for him success, but he was reckoned a just man. "I worked and planned night and day, year by year. Now I am rich. My son will be richer still. He is the center of my ambition. He must marry in the world for which I educated him. He must be the gentleman his father had no chance to be."

"What your boy is to you Bess is to me," said Sterling, with an effort.

"I loved her mother. The words sort of strangle me, Thadd. I call you that just once, for we are back in the old days. Yes, the words choke me, but for Bess' sake I'll speak them. She said I had always given her what she cried for, though I'm none too sure of myself this time. I am going to try. You want a lady for your boy. You want more—a pure, good woman. Bess is that. She has book learning too. But, Thadd, it cost money, all I'd saved, and when I took the spell of rheumatism cash ran low, and she—bless her grateful heart—she went into the mill till we could pull things straight. It's the factory stamp you have against her—that's how she got it. Thadd, you mind the year of the strike; it's all of twenty years now. You had just opened your first shop, with everything tied up. It was sink or swim, and there was no insurance. You remember the powder the strikers smuggled in and the slow match burning when you and your watchman came suddenly upon it. You were white, and I don't know as I blame you. Death brushed shoulders with us that night. Your watchman stood to his duty. I cut that match!"

"I would have given you a share in the concern," protested the boss, living again the suspense of that awful moment.

"I'm a workman—never could be different. But you were grateful. You gave me a promise—a sort of oath!"—Giles sat motionless, the dawn of comprehension in his strong self-willed face. Noah held him, eye to eye.

"Seems like taking a mean advantage. It's powerful hard to ask. But I loved her mother. Don't decide now. See the girl. Learn to know her. I'll stand aside. I'll not be in your road."

"It's a pretty stiff test," said Giles slowly as he rose, memories, pride, ambition, gratitude, all warring within him. Then he stretched out his hand, and the two locked palms. "You have been a long time calling, but now you have spoken I honor your claim, old friend."
